Large contingency fund included for city hall

No tax increase projected for city new year budget

A preliminary budget filed Friday for the City of Canyon for the next fiscal year contains no tax increase and a large fund for contingencies in construction of the new city municipal building.

Prepared by former City Manager George Louder, who put the finishing touches on the preliminary budget draft during the evenings last week, the budget calls for estimated expenditures for the fiscal year which begins April 1 of $982,048. Revenues for the year are predicted to be about $982,820.

The budget proposal includes no major capital outlay items for purchase during the year. It includes funding for equipment for one new Canyon policeman, who Louder recommends be hired through the federal manpower program for a one-year period after which his salary will be paid out of city funds. Canyon Police Chief Al Stewart had indicated he has asked for three new men in his department.

The budget does not include a salary increase for city employees, who received substantial raises fewer than six months ago when a new city wage and salary schedule was adopted by the city commission.

Louder anticipates an increase of about $13,000 in the collection of ad valorem taxes for the coming year and lists a proposed income from that source of $312,952 for the '75-'76 year. Sales tax revenue for the city is estimated to total $100,000 for the coming year with franchise taxes expected to raise about $42,000.

Total income for general fund is anticipated to be $623,160, about $30,000 above the income projected for the 1974-75 year of $589,741.

An additional $359,700 is expected to come in from the water works with $265,000 of that total coming directly from water sales. The anticipated figure for water fund income is down considerably from the 1974-75 budget figure of $403,352.

Louder recommends the tax rate be left at 1.82 per $100 valuation on 40 per cent of valuation.

On the expenditure side of the ledger, Louder calls for an increase in virtually every fund. Personal services for the city are expected to cost $426,546 for the coming year, an 8 per cent increase over the 1974-75 budget figure of $395,501. Supplies for the year are anticipated at $72,101, a 22 per cent increase over 1974-75 figures of $59,120.

Contractual services should total $192,985 in the new budget compared to $186,040 for the current year. Capital outlay is down from last with a '75-'76 total of $115,653 compared to a '74-'75 total of $132,783.

The budget expenditure total other than debt service and a $75,000 contingency fund is $807,285.

"You will note that the contingency fund is the largest ever recommended in the budget during my administration," Louder says in a narrative accompanying the budget. "I would recommend that the commission make no commitment for this contingency fund until further along in the construction program for the new (city hall) building. It would be my recommendation that as much as possible of this fund be used for payment of construction when the building is fully accomplished. However, certain amounts must be used to cover expenses in equipping the new building in the various departments."

Louder said those departments which will move into the new building when completed have been asked to prepare a special budget for items they may need for the move.

Prices dim for cattle

With only about a month to go before they pull transient stocker cattle off their green wheat fields, Randall County farmers are eyeing an ever-slumping cattle market with a certain pessimism about what the market will hold in mid-March.

County Agent John Brazzil said last week some farmers are already removing cattle from their wheat pasture in an effort to hit the market before it goes lower.

Even though they purchased stocker cattle at low market prices last fall, had few losses over the winter due to foul weather, and recorded cheap gains on a good growth of wheat, the farmers stand to lose a good deal on each head this spring.

Last week the going price for stocker cattle was between 20 and 22 cents per pound with heavier cattle bringing between 24 and 26 cents per pound. With buyers showing great selectivity for quality, some light cattle are bringing less than 20 cents per pound.

Brazzil said farmers here are very concerned about the market situation "because these cattle will be carrying some weight and the end use of them is feedlots," which lay in disarray around the Panhandle.

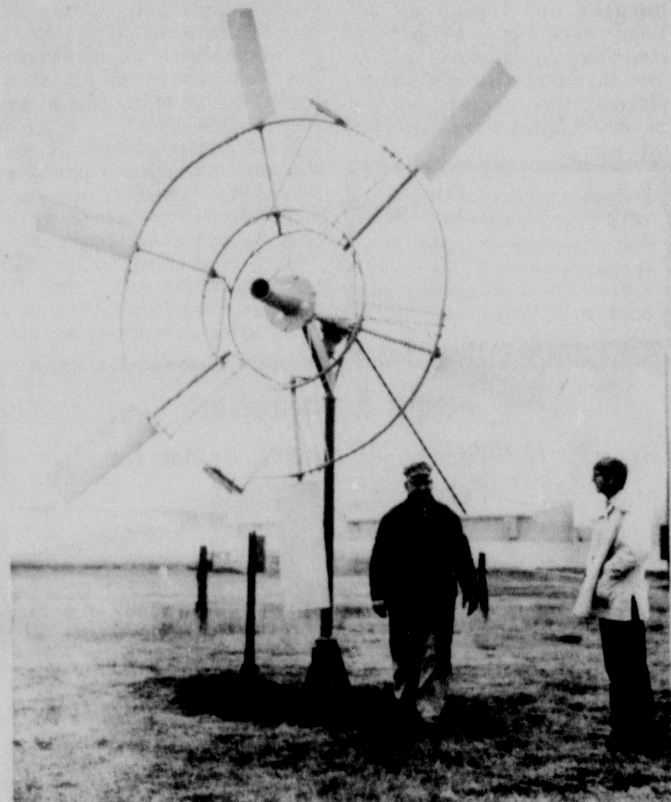

The market could go lower, the county agent said, because of the lack of interest in feedlots now to purchase cattle to feed. Running a negative margin on cattle on feed now, primarily due to high cost of feed, the feedlots "lack incentive to buy the cattle," he said.

Brazzil said a dramatic increase in the cattle price will be needed before feedlots can figure a profit in their operations.

Yet, he says, no one is predicting a big increase in the fat cattle market.

Brazzil said the slumping market is just another indication the cattle business is going through a period of readjustment, a period which could extend several years, and which must ultimately affect the cow-calf operator to reduce the number of cattle.

He estimates farmers in Randall County have between 35,000 and 45,000 head of cattle on wheat this winter here.

Dr. Vaughan Nelson, right, a physicist from West Texas State University, and Wiley Stockett, an Amarillo man who designed and built the windmill under which they stand prepare to begin erecting the windmill on the WT Nance Ranch Friday morning. Nelson and an associate from Amarillo College are erecting the windmill as an experimental unit for generating electricity to heat and cool a small house near the site.

WT windmill up at Nance Ranch

A West Texas State University physicist and his Amarillo collaborator chose a windless — but foggy and rainy — day to erect their experimental 1970's model windcharger.

Dr. Vaughan Nelson, head of WTSU's physics department, was ready at 10 a.m. Friday to begin putting the final touches on the windmill he and Earl Gilmore, Amarillo College physicist, have been planning for several months at the WTSU Nance Ranch.

Aided by Wiley Stockett, an Amarilloan who designed and built the blue and yellow windmill, Nelson's crew placed upright the multi-foot tower and then placed the rotary system atop it.

Plans call for the windmill to generate power to operate a system to heat and cool a small house just south of the feed mill on the Nance Ranch property. The two will also run tests on the unit to check wind velocities and the rotary structure.

Nelson, a long-time proponent of government funding for wind energy experimentation, announced several months ago the windmill would be erected at the site on the ranch. He and Gilmore had received funding last spring to conduct a study of available material on wind energy for the Texas Governor's council on energy.

Nelson and Gilmore produced a voluminous paper which essentially outlined the wind energy potential in the nation and tagged the Texas Panhandle as the one area of the country with the greatest wind energy potential.

Also interested in other alternate energy sources, Nelson is now working with two graduate students in physics to determine the feasibility of using solar energy to heat the Canyon city swimming pool this summer. A damaged boiler raised goose-bumps on swimmers last summer and Nelson volunteered to study the problem.

He expects a report on the feasibility by the end of February.

Senior citizens still due funding

A $6000 allocation for the Canyon Senior Citizens Association will remain in the funding request submitted by the City of Canyon a month from now for federal community development funds.

Tom Plumlee, acting city manager, said new guidelines from the federal Department of Housing and Urban Development indicate a pre-application must be submitted by the city to the Panhandle Regional Planning Commission by March 1. He said the city's pre-application will contain the allocation for the $6000 to the senior citizens organization.

But, he said, further guidelines must be awaited to see exactly what the money can be used for.

The $6000 had been set up in the city's proposed budget for the first year of a HUD grant program which will eventually bring $760,000 to the city for community development projects. Senior citizens requested the funds during public hearings held in late December to help finance refurbishing of old Neblett Hospital, which they hoped to purchase.

Plans to purchase the old hospital fell through earlier this month and the senior citizens say they will formulate other plans — possibly including construction of a new building for the group.

Plumlee said initial guidelines indicate the city will know by late March whether their proposed projects have been given tentative approval by HUD.

The city plan includes funds for first-year expenditure for an administrator to develop future programs under the community development program, a stepped-up code enforcement operation and a contingency fund.

Townsend in top five nominees for much-sought Grammy Award

A Canyon historian of academic bent, who spends his summers announcing rodeos throughout the country, his winters teaching college classes and his freetime running down anecdotes about famed Country Singer Bob Wills, Dr. Charles Townsend is among the top five nominees for a Grammy Award.

Townsend, professor of history at West Texas State University, was officially notified of his nomination by the National Academy of Recording Arts and Sciences for a Grammy Award in the category of Best Album Notes (non-classical).

The Grammys, coveted honors bestowed annually on recording artists, will be handed out March 1 in New York City and a part of the awards presentation will be telecast on CBS-TV.

Townsend has been nominated and rests among the top five candidates for the honor based on his album notes, a pamphlet inserted in each "For the Last Time" Bob Wills and his Texas Playboys album by United Artists.

"We are very pleased to inform you that you have been nominated in the 17th annual Grammy Awards," a letter from Bill Lowery, national president of the academy, says. "Please accept our sincere congratulations for this recognition by the academy's voting members who are your fellow creators and craftsmen in the recording field."

Townsend, who suspected some time ago he had been nominated for the awards by United Artists, doubted until Thursday that he had been selected among the top runners in the competition for the Grammy.

"I'd given up," Townsend said Friday.

Townsend said he had been contacted in mid-December by a woman representing the National Academy, who expressed interest in his album notes on Wills, the Country music innovator who was king of Country Swing in the 1930s and 1940s. The woman, he said, indicated announcement of nominees would be made Jan. 20. When that date passed and Townsend had no word of his nomination, he "figure it wasn't there."

He said he will make the trip to New York for the March 1 banquet and awards presentation.

Townsend's album notes on Wills amount to more than the usual back-of-the-cover meanderings.

Contacted by United Artists some time before the Wills album was put on the market, Townsend submitted a bulky folder of information on the Turkey, Texas, musician, not expecting the recording studio to use it all.

To his surprise, United Artists incorporated his writings not as cover notes but as a pamphlet inserted in the two-record album itself.

In the notes, Townsend traces Wills' background and his musical career in Country music. He also loaned United Artists numerous pictures for the

On Marsh election legality question

DA is asking again for opinions

For the second time in two months, the Randall County district attorney's office is renewing efforts to pry opinions from the Texas Attorney General's office concerning the election of Don Marsh, a county school trustee.

Dist. Atty. Randall Sherrod said he will renew efforts pursued in December by then-Dist. Atty. George Dowlen to hurry-up the AG's office before the Feb. 28 filing deadline for the county school board.

In June 1974, Dowlen asked the AG's office for two opinions dealing with the county board of school trustees, which finds itself amid controversy concerning a decision to allow Amarillo to annex a 165-acre tract of subdivision land in North Randall County from the Canyon school district.

One opinion has virtually become a moot point; it concerns the role of the county school board in deciding the annexation or detachment of school district properties. The board has already voted in November by a 3-2 margin to allow detachment and annexation of the Glendale subdivision.

The other, however, will be pertinent in the upcoming election for county school trustees. It asks the AG whether residents of county school board precinct which lies wholly within the Amarillo School District should be allowed to vote for the county trustee from that precinct. Under a Texas statute which became passe in the early part of the decade, those residents of the Amarillo district were disenfranchised in respect to the election of a county trustee. However, when a new Texas Education Code was adopted, a 1948 AG opinion was attached in the statute books which stipulates that those residents of the precinct cannot vote, even though the law itself has no such clause.

The AG opinion sought again by Sherrod may clear up who may vote in the upcoming election, but it will not clear up the legality of the continuing tenure of Marsh, an Amarillo accountant who represents a precinct which lies wholly within the Amarillo School District. Marsh did not seek re-election in 1973 and was not on the ballot. Nor did he take a new oath of office that year. Yet he has served since 1969 on the board.

Sherrod's office is currently investigating whether Marsh has been serving legally since 1973. A decision could have impact on the county board's decision three months ago to allow for detachment of the Canyon school land and annexation to Amarillo. Marsh was one of three trustees to vote for the annexation.

Marsh has not filed for election in the upcoming April board elections. Charles Purcell, another Amarilloan, has filed for re-election to his seat on the board.

LBB recommendation is $1 million higher

Briscoe budget for WTSU down

Gov. Dolph Briscoe recommended to legislators last week a two-year budget for the state which, if passed, would mean substantially less money for West Texas State University than is included in a Legislative Budget Board recommendation.

Both the governor's recommendation and the LBB recommendation have gone to legislators now for their perusal, but WTSU Financial Vice President Hermas Miller does not expect committee action on either proposal until at least the end of this month.

Briscoe's recommended budget calls for an allocation of $9,407,262 for the university for the first year of the biennium which begins next August. An allocation of $9,941,242 is set aside for the second year of the biennium under the Briscoe plan.

Those amounts are substantially less than recommended by the LBB, an official arm of Texas fiscal government. The LBB has recommended a first-year allocation of $10,621,384, and a second year allocation of $10,342,919.

Both the governor's and the LBB's proposals are well above the current year funding for the university — $7,342,422.

Complete figures on the governor's proposal were not available last week, but Miller released figures on the LBB recommendation for the university's next two years of operation. The LBB has recommended a hefty faculty and staff salary raise for both years. The figure for resident instruction includes: $4.7 million for faculty salaries for the first year and $5.0 million for the second year; $862,000 for departmental operating expense for the first year and $948,000 for the second; $200,000 for the instructional administration for the first year and $214,000 for the second; $160,000 for both years for organized activities.

The university in submitting a budget proposal last fall to the LBB placed faculty salaries as the top priority funding item, noting the dramatic effects of inflation.

General administration for the university is allocated $815,000 for the first year of the biennium under the LBB formula and $910,000 for the second year.

The university library is allocated under the LBB budget $491,000 for the first year of the biennium and $549,000 for the

Cut Federal Spending

By ANN BROWN

The President's oft-repeated plea for Americans to tighten their belts is reminiscent of the lush who swore off water because he decided it was intoxicating.

The fellow reasoned thus: "I drank bourbon and water, and got drunk. I drank scotch and water, and got drunk. I drank gin and water, and got drunk. Water's gotta go."

According to the latest report from the U.S. Chamber of Commerce 72.5 million Americans receive salaries paid solely from tax funds.

That sounds bad enough.

But only 71.9 million people are reported employed in the private sector to pay those salaries. That means every private worker is carrying 1+ persons on his back.

Any private worker who thinks he's tired carrying his 1+ burden should think about the farmer.

Back in the early days of the New Deal after the government had taken control of the farms, one congressman, alarmed at the burgeoning army in the Department of Agriculture, reportedly introduced a bill to prohibit the number of FDA employees from exceeding the number of farmers. He was jeered into silence.

At the latest count, however, there were 8 FDA employees to every farmer!

While President Ford pleads with Americans to economize, he signs a bill authorizing 112,000 public jobs, and extends unemployment benefits—all at the taxpayers expense.

One retiring senator recommended all government employees take a salary cut—beginning with the President and the Congress. (Don't hold your breath.)

Perhaps the most difficult thing businessmen face today (next to government red tape) is finding people who are willing to give a day's work for a day's pay.

Millions of people are out of work, yet every large newspaper bulges with job offers.

There are indeed many people who are unemployed. They either cannot or will not produce the quality of work that an employer can afford to pay for.

Mushrooming millions of Americans, however, are refusing to take available jobs because they are "beneath" them, or they do not pay what the applicants feel they are worth—or must have to maintain their accustomed life style.

Cafes, nursing homes, and garages are constantly pleading for help. Numerous establishments have been forced to close for lack of workers.

Many people are much too proud to accept such "menial" employment, but are not at all too proud to accept welfare provided by tax money from people who are doing the nation's "dirty" work.

Office of Management and Budget Director, Roy Ash, says, "We need to dispel the shibboleth that government spending implies that government as such has been increasing."

What is increasing, says Ash, is the role of government as a redistributor of income: Collecting cash from some people and paying it to others.

"In effect," says Ash, "more than half of all cash money that passes through government these days is merely on its way to somebody else . . . to spend."

In other words, the government is stealing the hard-earned money of those who work to give it to those who shirk.

Big Brother does not owe everybody the job of his choice—or any job at all—as long as private jobs or public lands are available.

We are becoming a welfare state. All welfare states eventually develop rampant inflation and go bankrupt. Then comes dictatorship and slavery.

Harriet Beecher Stowe is said to have lighted the fuse to the war between the states with her book, Uncle Tom's Cabin. We need another Mrs. Stowe to set off the taxpayer's revolt, and free us from current despotic government policies.

By CARROLL WILSON

I'd say the group was about 50 strong, and mostly male, standing there under a warm spring sun on the pavement just north of the Double Dip, a perennial favorite hang-out of the Amarillo High School set.

It was after we'd all finished our hurried lunches in the school cafeteria and we had been kind of just hanging around outside the building there on the east side, talking and smoking and not much else. That is, until this kid came running across Polk Street toward us, yelling "Fight, Fight!"

I suspect Ben Moore, who was then assistant principal when AHS still breathed downtown air, could come up with a ballpark estimate on the number of fights high schoolers get into when spring warms the outside. Spring brought on fight fever, and as a five-footer, I became an amiable and friendly soul as spring approached—just in self defense.

Anyway, this kid was running across the street, yelling about this fight, and we weren't too interested because in the spring, as I said before, fights were a dime a dozen, really, unless the fight was a particularly good one and liable to be bloody or liable in some way to disrupt the kind of unwritten but well recognized hierarchy in the student pecking order.

But, before the kid had made it all the way across Polk, we'd joined him for a romp to the Double Dip parking lot to watch what had to be the fight of the year. I mean you just don't every day see two girls—that's right, girls—really getting with it. What a fight.

There wasn't one among us brave enough to step into the fray at a risk of his own hair, face and clothing, to break it up. We just watched from a respectable distance.

Which reminds me of a three-inch story which appeared about a week ago in a Houston newspaper, datelined Mogadishu, Somalia. Headlined "Ten Men Killed For Opposing Women's Rights," the story began like this: "Ten men died publicly before a firing squad today for agitating against a government decree granting equal rights to women . . ."

"The court has convicted 23 other men on the charge, sentencing six to 30 years imprisonment and 17 to 20 years. Two have been acquitted."

Now, there's a fight going on among women in this country right now, and I'm glad I'm sitting this one out—just standing there as I did 13 years ago, enjoying the battle and the gnashing of teeth, but no more involved than I was then.

And, I want to make it clear that the remarks which follow are to be understood in that vein. They come from one who has little or no concern with whether the Equal Rights Amendment passes or fails, one who isn't interested in fighting about it, but is interested in watching the fight itself.

It's not that I fear the end met by the Somalia Ten, those stalwarts of male chauvinism, 'cause our government doesn't work that way, right?

It's that the fight over passage or rescinding of the federal Equal Rights Amendment is largely a moot point, not one worth fighting over, and I will bite my tongue to check my penchant for male chauvinism before I say that the ERA fight is, nevertheless, a good thing because it gives women something to do besides change diapers and worry about groceries. Remember, I didn't say that—I just thought it, and mentally slapped my hand for letting chauvinism creep in when I really thought I had it so well under control.

Why is it a moot point? Let me say first of all that I haven't followed this fight among women like I should have been. Since my sophomore year in high school, I've cooled a bit on the enjoyment I get from a girl-fight. Nevertheless, I think the fact that I'm not aware of all the nuances of the law as the Women Who Want to Be Women see them or as the National Organization for Women sees them gives me a bit of an objective advantage.

So, to return to the question: Why is it a moot point?

It's moot for several reasons: (a) the rights guaranteed under the Equal Rights Amendment, if ratified, are already guaranteed elsewhere in the U. S. Constitution, (b) the rights guaranteed anywhere in the U. S. Constitution are only as valid as the Supreme Court says they are, (c) we cannot read the future and predict how the Supreme Court is going to validate or invalidate rights for us Americans, and (d) nor can we read and predict the circumstances and the mood of the country during which time the Supreme Court wrestles with the ERA if it becomes supreme law.

The ERA has been pushed and passed during an era in America which could only be characterized as one of distrust of the contractual relationship which exists between U. S. citizens and their government. Briefly, the U. S. Constitution is that contract which binds citizens and government under a supreme entity, that entity being the document itself, which is by definition (and early court action) the supreme law of the land. The Bill of Rights, which this country's early founders largely believed to be superficial if not downright dangerous for inclusion in the constitution they drafted, at the time they were passed and incorporated were largely believed to cover just about every inalienable right under the sun, rights which could not be abridged.

Read the first 10 amendments or so and if you can think of a single right not included, I'd like to know of it. Amendment IX, for example, covers a multitude of rights not specified in other amendments to the constitution. It says: "The enumeration in the Constitution, of certain rights shall not be construed to deny or disparage others retained by the people." Is that broad enough for you?

Actually, it's not. The Supreme Court has largely written this amendment out of the constitution and only former Justice Goldberg, when on the bench, has had the audacity to invoke this amendment to uphold rights in a particular case. Nevertheless, Amendment IX is in there in black and white, and if we were wont to hypothesize about uncertain eventualities sprouting from an amendment, as the WWW has done, we could envision a whole Pandora's Box of troubles from Amendment IX.

Amendment XIV also protects the rights of the nation's citizens with two clauses which say no citizen may be deprived of rights without due process and that no person may be denied the equal protection of the laws.

So, in reality, the women who want equal rights already have the upper hand in the Constitution and the Women Who Want To Be Women are beaten before they start, unless they want to take on the 9th and 14th Amendments as well as the ERA.

As a sidenote, it's important to understand that the archaic Texas Constitution also embodies the Equal Rights Amendment, Texans having ratified it several years ago.

And, to digress further, even though Texas has had the equal rights amendment low these many months, I have yet to run into a woman in the men's room at the courthouse.

To proceed, the Supreme Court is the final arbiter of what the Constitution says and means (see Marbury v. Madison), and rights guaranteed in the Constitution are guaranteed as the court says they are. In essence, you could have an ERA stuck there on the tail of the Constitution from now till doomsday and if the court wanted to ignore it—as it has done the 9th Amendment—it'd ignore it.

How the Supreme Court is going to interpret the ERA and stretch or limit its phraseology remains to be seen. It borders on the ridiculous to pose hypothetical arguments against the ERA based on how it might be interpreted, or implemented. One argument I've heard, and I hope I can contain my laughter as I relate it, goes something like this:

"If the ERA passes, your daughter could become a prisoner of war. She could be drafted and sent overseas to fight and end up in a POW camp. How'd you like that?"

My response to that kind of question goes something like this: "Your daughter may slip and fall in the bathtub tomorrow. She could die of complications. Shouldn't we ban the use of bathtubs, or at least the taking of baths?"

Banal questions, really, and ones not deserving answer.

Ah, but as Dr. James P. Cornette, former president of West Texas State University, used to say (and I paraphrase): "The joy is in the doing, the fun of life is in the living."

I find myself a spectator in a battle two groups of women are enjoying and I'm enjoying it myself.

ERA Seen As Threat To American Way Of Life

Dear Editor,

The groups opposing the Equal Rights Amendment (ERA) have been accused of using scare tactics in their efforts to rescind (repeal) the ERA in Texas. The most common quote we hear is "The things you say will happen are ridiculous. The American people won't let that happen."

The E.R.A. presents a great threat to the American way of life and could be the most important issue ever. One of the communist goals is total equality of the masses. The E.R.A. is over-simplified and leaves the door open to numerous consequences. We oppose the E.R.A. because it is so vague. We would recommend specific legislation for specific problems concerning equal rights.

Are you opposed to legalizing homosexual marriages? Are you opposed to abortion on demand? Are you opposed to 18 year old girls registering for the selective service or the draft? Are you opposed to freeing husbands and wives of their legal responsibilities to each other and their children? Are you in favor of separation of Church and State? These are just a few of the questions you need to ask yourself. If you answer "yes" to any one of these . . . YOU must oppose the E.R.A.

The only way the American people won't let it happen is to stand up for what YOU believe and be counted.

Write your State Senators and Representatives! Ask them to vote FOR rescission (repealing) the ratification of the E.R.A. in Texas. For further information on the E.R.A. please write P. O. Box 5743, Lubbock, Tex. 79408.

Dimes March Is A Success

Dear Carroll,

On behalf of the March of Dimes, we would like to extend a big "Thank You" to each and every one who helped make Sunday's Mother's March a success. Canyon people always respond generously. Our special thanks to Heritage Woman's Club, Canyon Study Club, Les Amies Juniors Club, Canyon Dames and Scabbard & Blade for providing marchers. To date we have collected $848.10.

Due to illness and other community functions, many residents were not contacted, but anyone wishing to contribute may mail their donations to the First National Bank in Canyon.

The money collected will help provide research to insure a healthy birthright for every baby. Forty percent of collections in the Golden Spread area will remain here to help provide services for area residents.

Again, our heartfelt thanks to each person who marched and to all who contributed.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Orrell Vise,

News Stories 'Excellent'

Dear Carroll,

I wish to express my thanks to you as Editor of the Canyon News for your excellent coverage of City Hall during my administration. I am thoroughly convinced that your coverage many times enabled the public to more completely understand the actions of the City and the City Commission's reasons for various decisions.

I look forward to continuing our association in my new position.

I would like to take this opportunity also to thank all the citizens of Canyon who have so graciously given of their support to the City Commission and me in many of the endeavors we have undertaken in the past four years.

Sincerely,
George Loudder
City Manager

Reader Agrees With Editorial

Dear Editor,

I want to tell you I agree with your article in last Sunday's paper. Too many today are "majoring on minors" or they have just ran completely out of something to do. I feel that the bulk of broadcasting by the media of Television is a menace to our society today. The United Pentecostal Church went on record some years ago as being against their members having a T. V. in their home. We still hold that stand today. I feel my home is much happier because we have more time together that is not regimented by T. V.

WT Symphonic Band To Perform Today

The West Texas State University Symphonic Band, now in the final count-down before their California appearance before the National Association of College Band Directors Convention, will be heard by the home audience today.

News Errs

The News erroneously reported in Thursday's issue that the outside auditors for Randall County receive about $20,000 per year for their services. Bill Francis of the firm of Doshier, Francis and Pickens of Amarillo, reported that the firm was paid $3500 last year for its auditing services.

News Brief

Named to the Dean's Honor Roll for the fall semester at Wayland Baptist College is MaryAnn Lindsey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. P. E. Lindsey of 1111 Creekmore Dr., Canyon. MaryAnn is a senior and an elementary education major at Wayland.

is invited to attend, is scheduled for 3 p.m. in the Fine Arts Theatre.

Music by American composers will be prominent in the afternoon program. "Rocky Point Holiday" by Ron Nelson, "Parable" by Vincent Persichetti and "Dilemmae" by William Latham are representative of the excellent repertoire composed expressly for concert band in recent decades. An arrangement of the Finale from Ives' Symphony No. 3, and John Phillip Sousa's "Solid Men to the Front" round out the offering of American music.

The Symphonic Band will also perform the Liebestod from Tristan and Isolde by Wagner, arranged by Bainum; and a selection from Nabucco by Verdi, arranged by Cailliet.

The West Texas State University Symphonic Band, under the direction of Dr. Gary Garner, was one of six college and university ensembles invited to appear at the college band directors convention. Local response to the band's fund-raising drive, which included a record setting march from Canyon to Amarillo, has been enthusiastic, enabling the musicians to represent WTSU in concert at Hertz Hall in Berkeley on Feb. 5.

Wreck scene . . . two injured in 23rd Street accident.

Woman, Child Hurt In Accident

A car-truck accident at the intersection of Highway 87 and 13th Ave. in Canyon has left a woman and her seven-year-old daughter in fair condition at Amarillo's Northwest Texas Hospital.

Mrs. Mollie Limer Blackmon, 26, and her daughter, Linda, were injured while waiting to make a left turn off Highway 87 onto 13th Ave. Mrs. Blackmon's husband, Warren D. Blackmon, was in front of his wife in the turning lane when he turned left in front of a northbound delivery truck.

The truck, driven by Jeffrey Lee McCormick, 19, of Lubbock, swerved to the left to miss Blackmon. At this point, McCormick lost control of the truck on the rain slick streets and, as it was on two wheels and falling, struck the car, completely shearing off the roof. The truck landed on its left side about 60 feet from the point of impact.

The truck, leased to Plains Poultry and Egg Company of Lubbock by an Arkansas trucking firm, was loaded with chickens bound for Amarillo. McCormick was uninjured in the mishap.

The Blackmon family were in the process of moving from Perryton to Odessa when the accident occurred.

Jerry D. Becknell?

Maybe you should. It couldn't hurt.

He's the professional campus representative for the Pierce College Program. The most imaginative and creative insurance program ever offered to college upper-classmen and recent graduates.

We call it the "Wings to your Future" program. For good reasons. Like any good insurance program, it offers protection and security for people you love in case you die. But more important, it offers security, savings, and protection to you and the people you love while you're alive.

And living's the big number. You know it. We know it. And he's got a program that proves it. That's why he's worth knowing.

Miss LaRoe Wins Scholarship For "Wool" Seamstress Entry

Jini LaRoe has won a $500 scholarship from Butterick Fashion Marketing in New York for her entry in the national finals competition of the Make It Yourself With Wool contest.

Miss LaRoe, 18, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Shirley LaRoe of Happy and received her scholarship for placing third in the competition. Winners were announced recently in San Antonio where the final judging for the 27th annual competition took place.

A senior at Happy High School, Miss LaRoe is a former home economics student and 4-H member and plans to enroll at Texas Tech University to major in speech pathology upon graduation from HHS.

Miss LaRoe's award was for a camel-colored gabardine loose-fitting dress which she constructed using Vogue Pattern number 1115. She accessorized the dress with a camel colored felt hat, brown and off-white checked scarf, brown reptile belt, brown bracelet and sandals. It was the second year that Miss LaRoe had entered the Make It Yourself With Wool competition.

Her older sister, Cathey Jo, represented Texas at the national finals of the same contest in Washington, D. C. two years ago and placed fourth in the nation. Cathey Jo is now a graduate of Texas Technological University and presently serves the County Extension Service as home demonstration agent for Carson County in Panhandle.

The Make It Yourself With Wool contests are sponsored annually by the American Wool Council, a division of the American Sheep Producers Council in Denver, Colorado and the Women's Auxiliary to the National Wool Growers Association of Salt Lake City, Utah. The contest's purpose is "to instill an appreciation of the qualities of wool in sewing, knitting and crochet and to promote workmanship and confidence in constructing garments, to develop fashion sense and styling ability and promote the use of wool." Texas is the nation's number one sheep-producing state and provides the highest-quality wool and high-grade meat products to American markets, according to the American Sheep Producers Council.

Judges decisions are based on the contestant's sewing, knitting or crocheting ability with 100 percent wool or wool blends of at least 70 percent wool; on making a garment properly coordinated in color, design and texture for the contestant's own figure and coloring; and on selecting a fashion suitable to age and activities of the entrant as well as modelling the garment submitted for the contest.

This year 35 national finals contestants representing 25 states competed at the national level in San Antonio after winning over thousands of other teenagers at both district and state levels.

Miss LaRoe, whose parents farm near Happy, is a member of the Happy Church of Christ where she is assistant Bible School teacher. She is a member of the Texas State Future Homemakers of America, Future Teachers of America, National Honor Society and the Pep Squad at Happy High School, where she is a senior. She is the editor for the school yearbook and enjoys reading, bicycling and sewing in leisure time.
